This week, I had a chat with my weekly buddy Imogen. We discussed our business ideas or motivations. While we were having a discussion we tried to give each other some good feedback in order to solve each other problems that we were facing. She told me how she really wanted to start a smoothy business which offers books to read. So that people can come and spend quality time.

I also read a book that was suggested to me on slack. I really enjoyed that book as I learned some new things which I wasn't aware of before and I think it will help me in the upcoming weeks of the internship. Overall I had a great experience learning and meeting new people during this week.
